MONTREAL (UPI) - International Olympic Commit-tee president Avery Brundage has demanded the return of all alpine skiing medals won during last year's Olympic competition at Grenoble, Montreal Star reported today.

Brundage filed his demand, it was reported, with the Federation Internationale de Ski, the world governing body of skiing, over the issue of commercial subsidizing of some skiers.

Among skiers who would be affected were Canada's Nancy Greene, gold medal winner in the giant slalom and silver medalist in the slalom; France's Jean-Claude Killy, winner of all three men's alpine events; Austria's downhill winner, Olga Pall, and France's Marielle Goitschelle, gold medalist in the slalom.

Ian MacDonald, sportswriter for the Star, said that in a telephone interview with Brundage in San Francisco Brundage had confirmed his action.

Brundage was quoted as having said the FIS had replied return of the medals would be outside the FIS jurisdiction, and suggested that Brundage deal with national Olympic Associations. "The letter I wrote to the

A harbor cannon boomed a salute to the rugged 30-yearold merchant marine officer as he crossed the finishing line in his 32-foot ketch Suhaili after a 29,000-mile expedition

High winds and a heavy sea foiled his attempt to sail directly into Falmouth harbor. Northeasterly winds forced him to zig-zag over the last few miles, delaying his entry by more than seven hours.

The mayor of Falmouth, civil officials and crowds of Britons gathered to honor the man who suffered incredible hardships for 311 solitary days at sea. A golden globe and possibly $12,000 in prize money awaited him.

Unshaven, dressed in rags and down to his last few cans of food, Knox-Johnston spent his last night affoat drifting 30

Storms on the 29,000-mile expedition smashed the Suhali's rudden and broke her self-steering gear. Most of the fresh water supply was contaminated when the ketch. capsized last September, and he had depended on rain water since then.

Germ War Stockpile 'Endangers Millions'

By VICTOR COHN The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - U.S. stockpiles of chemical and biological agents have become so huge and so poisonous that they now endanger both the United States and the world Rep. Richard D. McCarthy (D-

N.Y.) charged Monday. He said the defence depart ment has stockpiled enough chemicals "in just two states" Colorado and Utah - to kill more than 100 million people, but done almost nothprotect either U.S. armed forces or civilians in case of enemy attack. He said the military is constantly endangering Americans by the way it transports chemical and germ agents around the country — aboard trains subject to derailment and, in the case of germ agents, "in unguarded three-gallon canisters in commercial aircraft" subject to

He reached all these conclusions, he stated, hearing a secret army briefing for members of Congress, then seeking and getting more facts from the Pentagon.

All this "only makes me more concerned," he re-ported," and "my main con-clusion" is the need for the U.S. to join international efforts to ban all such agents. Specifically, he said in a news conference and house statement: The U.S. is still clearly engaging in "chemical warfare" in Vietnam by using or giving South Vietnamese forces tear and nausea-producing gases and defoliants U.S. and South Vietnamese forces are using such gases moreover to flush enemy forces from tunnels so can be hit by U.S.

Despite past statements from some U.S. officials, the 1925 Geneva convention against chemical warfare was intended to include nausea and tear gases. • President Nixon should resubmit that convention to the senate - which rejected it in 1925 after the U.S. originated it.

• The President should also back current British efforts to add "a complete ban on production, possession and use" of biological weapons like germs.

In addition, he said, a select committee of Congress should be named to investigate the whole subject — particularly what he called "a series of contradictions" in defence and state department statements.

Among the contradictions, he charged, are statements that the U.S. makes nerve gas and germ weapons only to achieve "limited" and "defensive" capability, yet has made vast amounts.

Also in this class, he added: official reports that there has been "no lasting damage" to Vietnam's chain of plant and animal life as a result of defoliation. He cited reports by academic scientists to contradict this. He said secrecy should be removed from chemical and germ war facts - just as secrecy has been removed from the number of missiles

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

The weather present in the immediate-vicinity of a dirtmaking industry may be quite a bit different from the weather existing a quarter-mile down the street. A brass foundry, for example, may have a microweather that affects some of its workers sufficiently to cause them to suffer what is known among foundrymen as "Monday fever."

The fever results from the inhalation of fumes from the crucibles containing molten brass. The foundryman first suffers nausea and thirst. Then he gets a headache. Usually followed by pain in the arms and legs, shivering, fever and heavy sweating. When he goes home, where the microweather is normal, he recovers.

The affliction became known as "Monday fever" because, after a weeken away from the foundry's polluted atmosphere, the foundryman lost his tolerance to the fever-making fumes and the acclimatization had to begin all over again at the start of the new week. He was likely to suffer more on Monday than on the following days of the week.

No Earthquake -Just Joyride

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (UPI)—Eighteen-year-old Marine Pte. Randall B. Waldrop decided to go for a midnight joyride. Unfortunately for the nerves of Oceanside residents and police he took his jaunt in a 35-ton amphibious tractor.

The trail of Waldrop and his Amtrac wasn't hard to find. He left behind him a disaster of gouged pavement and crushed curbs. Police caught up with him as he left Oceanside and

There was no way of stopping the Amtrac.

By the time Waldrop and the amphibious tractor had gone through Carlsbad and started down Interstate 5, the main north-south route between Los Angeles and San Diego, there were seven patrol cars in futile pursuit.

They finally were able to cut off the Amtrac and take Waldrop into custody, where he was charged with stealing government property.

The Amtrac went home on the back of a flatbed truck.

New from Goodyear the Polyglastire! Up to double the mileage at nowhere near double the price.

It's a new concept in tire construction. A combination of fiberglass and polyester cord. Bias ply layers of polyester cord form the body of the tire, while belts of fiberglass are applied as hoops around the circumference of the tire under the tread. Together they hold the tread firm on the road. This means less tire squirm. Less tire wear. More mileage—up to double the mileage of tires found on most new cars. Plus a handling and riding experience you've never known. It's the tire of the future—today!

Fiberglass Pound for pound, stronger than steel. Goodyear bonds the fiberglass belt to the underside of an improved tread. It holds the full width of the tread against the road-even at high speedsresisting "squirm", the major cause of excessive tread wear.

You can get Goodyear's new Polyglas tires in the Custom Wide Tread for the new generation of performance cars. Or the Power Cushion to fit most standard cars.

Polyester The miracle cord. Around the sidewalls, under the fiberglass belt are plies of polyester-cord on a bias angle. This gives you maximum shock absorption for a smooth no thump ride. Polyester has the strength of nylon and the flexibility of rayon. It practically eliminates cuts and impact breaks, gives you a more durable, longer life tire.

The flexible polyester cord sidewalls absorb the leaning action on curves and corners. This tire has muscular strength, stamina and flexibility to give you the smoothest, safest ride ever!

Only Goodyear makes the Polyglas tire. Yes, you pay a little more—but what a bargain for the extra miles you get! The Polyglas can last twice as long as tires that come on most new cars. See your Goodyear store, dealer or service station for Polyglas tires. They can double your mileage.

A Question of Rights

that has tied up operations since Sunday night provides another example of the principle that in the last third of the twentieth century and in continent-wide country such as Canada there is neither time nor place for labor-management disputes that disrupt essential services, particularly in the fields of tranportation and communication. In the present instance the impact of the strike of 6,300 machinists is a little blunted by the expansion of services of Canadian Pacific Air Lines and several smaller companies. But the country only recently suffered the disruption of a postal strike and in 1966 an air strike which caused nation-wide confusion and great additional expense.

It is accepted that unions should enjoy use of such bargaining tactics as will assure them of their rights in helping to establish wages and conditions of work. But it is equally clear that in an age when men are launching into space, when computers and automation have revolutionized practices in industry, finance, education and a dozen other fields, when medical science is revealing almost incredible new wonders to mankind, when basic processes and methods which have been used for generations in the past are being questioned, altered and often discarded-in such an age, the continued use of the dull, blunt, mutually harmful instrument of the strike is an anachronism.

This is particularly so in industries which perform important services for the nation as a whole, when the cessation of services or products is not a matter only for the producer practices as we move rapidly toward and his employees but for the coun-

IT IS NOT HARD TO AGREE that "hate literature" is a bad thing. What is difficult is to reach agreement on what should be done about it. This country has never been seriously threatened by published attacks on racial or religious groups, but such vituperation still exists in substantial quantities, enough to convince a special committee, set up to investigate the problem in 1965, that some action should be taken by censorship, is in making definitions.

Precise, objective determination of what constitutes "hate literature"

may prove impossible. The committee attempted to define it as "any kind of representation which promotes hatred or contempt against any identifiable group." It went on to categorize such groups as "any section of the public distinguished by religion, color, race, language, or ethnic or national origin."

The difficulty, as in any form of the federal government.

THE AIR CANADA STRIKE try at large—perhaps for its safety, certainly for its convenience and proper operation. In striking for a wage increase of 20 per cent in one year, the airline machinists are pressing far beyond the area which is seen as presenting reasonable increases without adding destructively to inflationary pressure. The company proposal of 23 per cent over three years was acceptable to onethird of the voting union members and appears to be reasonably within the inflationary limit.

But the specific details of this case do not change the principle that the strike weapon is largely outmoded. To make up for its relinquishment by employees in essential public work it should be made clear that labor dispute settlements. in such cases will recognize the special status of the employees and relieve them not only of the right to strike but also the need to strike. It is true, of course, and rightly so. that no man can be made to work for wages or under conditions which he finds unacceptable. He must have the right to look elsewhere for better recognition of his abilities if he wishes. But a small segment of society should not retain the collective right to impose grave injury on the whole if we are to maintain a viable sort of community under the highly integrated conditions of the modern world.

That puts the responsibility on society to guarantee that justice is done. Workers should be given clear proof of this, both in law and in practice. But we should not continue nineteenth century labor negotiation

But this is deceptive. Sometimes questions of religion, language, or

I^T was about 2:30 in the morning when the honorable member for Riverdale, James Renwick, asked yet again whether the government would not give "a

Greer that 100 times, came an anguished cry from the government back benches, which was only a mild exaggeration, easily excused by the lateness of the hour. By actual count, Mr. Renwick and other opposition members had asked it 78 times and, after four days of debate, they were getting their second wind and about to ask it ad infinitum and forever.

It had started on April 1 with a marathon speech by the honorable member for Scarborough Centre, Margaret Renwick, when the government asked the Legislature to approve the $264,789,000 spending estimates of the Department of Social and Family Services. Half-way through her speech, Mrs. Renwick began talking about the board of review, and there are some dazed Tories who will swear she hasn't

No Grant Without Appeal

The Legislature had heard about the board of review before - for a few days in March of last year when the government rushed through legislation authorizing its establishment. Under Ontario's agreement with the federal government, there had to be an appeal procedure in operation by April 1, 1968 for the province to qualify for Canada Assistance Plan grants. The government made the deadline with three days to spare.

But that was the last anyone had heard of it until Mrs. Renwick started talking, for the simple reason no board of review was ever set up. How Ontario was able to get millions out of Ottawa without meeting the federal conditions is still an unresolved mystery but what the Minister of Social and Family Services, John Yaremko, did admit was that the Legislature has been voting some $200,000 over the past two years which was never spent, because no one was appointed to the board of review until January of this year.

The three appointees, it developed did not hold their first meeting until March 10 and have been asked to review only seven welfare cases, all from Peterborough, which they did - by remarkable coincidence while the Legislature was taking its Easter recess.

This, however, merely proved to be the tip of the iceberg. As New Democratic and Liberal members warmed to the hunt, it turned out the government had told very few people, and least of all the 108,000 recipients of welfare and family benefit allowances, that there was now an appeal procedure available to them if they were dissatisfied with the decisions that had been made in respect of their requests for

Kept It Secret

Nor, obviously, did the government want the recipients to know about it. To get a review, the Legislature learned, a person had to apply on a "Form 6"; but he was never told this and a supply of the forms had never been sent to the Department's regional welfare offices or to the municipal welfare administrators.

Would the Minister then undertake to see that every applicant and recipient of assistance would be informed of his right to appeal? No, the Minister would not. "I just have not seen the need of it yet," Mr. Yaremko said

And with that the filibuster was on, with the opposition demanding Mr. Yaremko either change his mind, or withdraw his estimates, or resign, and Mr. Yaremko declaring, like a broken record, "I have given my answer, Mr. Chairman,

The government, Mr. Yaremko inin which a woman was told to try sisted, was "pioneering" in an uncharted field; the framework of the review board needed. In one of the Peterborough cases was "unique". "As we go through the year," he said, "we will find out what the necessities are and we will develop

'Let's Make It Tough'

John Brown (NDP, Beaches - Woodbine), a professional social worker, told Mr. Yaremko: "The basic philosophy underlying your approach seems to be: 'Let's make it tough for the people who apply. Let's discourage them. Maybe if we give them a hard time, they will go away." Hence the need for an appeal procedure which will not only protect recipients of social assistance against abuse, but will tend to regularize and codify the standards of eligibility and their administration. Without such a procedure, the right to assistance which, in effect at least, is set out in statute is

Nor is the right to appeal meaningful if it is secret and hidden from those to whom it is available. And therefore, Mr. Renwick was saying at 2.30 in the morning, would the government not give some reasonable assurance that it would let these people know?

Mr. Renwick was saying all this again ecause Premier Robarts, who had been absent for most of the filibuster, had entered the House. Mr. Roberts was observed to whisper to Mr. Yaremko. Mr. Renwick sat down and Mr. Yaremko got up. The words stuck in his throat but

Remembering Old Socialists

Mr. Tickner wishes to know why the components of the CCF in 1933 did not join the SP of C. The party of that name had only been in existence a short time, having been known as the ILP previ-Mr. Tickner would have been as horrified at their pretension to the name as he is now at the NDP. The name was changed in order to draw back old time socialists who once adhered to the iginal SP of C. defunct since 1924 or thereabouts. Some did come back, did not like what they saw, and in due course formed the party Mr. Tickner belongs to. The majority group went into the CCF when it was formed. And seeing there were farmer labor groups in Ontario and on the Prairies then all more formidable than the SP of C, it is hard to see the latter as being the third largest in Canada.

The original SP of C was only strong In B.C., but the formation of the Communist Party in 1920 ruined it. This original party had elected members it is true. But these MLAs, although Socialists, were elected to do "something now" -and why not. By getting something now, working people are far better off than in my young days. I knew these MLAs personally, from Parker Williams to C. M. O'Brien. - F. S. Faulkner, 1417 Douglas.

heard as any other. Message Blocked

However, the churches, though they have changed their own pedagogic approach, find it very difficult to get their new message across to the powers that be in the educational field. A brief presented by the Victoria Council of Churches to the B.C. Federation's Commission on Educational Issues in 1968 was courteously received but absolutely ignored in the Commission's Report, "The Key to Better Schools." Another brief by the same Council of Churches to the Minister of Education in 1965 was dealt with in a highly procrastinating way for two years till its request was conceded and the statutes amended.

How are the churches to get their new message across when the politicians and teachers will not listen but persist in discussing the issue in totally outmoded

The Brief to the Teachers' Federation's Commission asked for "the establishment of some regular means of inter-communication between the teaching profession and the institutional churches"-such as a standing conference to meet every year or two. But there has been no response, and this despite the fact that for many years the official "Aims of Education in British Columbia" contained the following statements:

"The home, the church, the community, and the school should work together to provide strong and worthy guidance for our children," and "it is possible for the school to bring together all those educational forces that will contribute to the best development of the child."

As the Lord said through the prophet Isaiah, "Come, le us reason together." All I ask is, why not?-Canon C. H. Butler, 2684 Seaview Rd.

TV Junk Battle Failing

By PETER ROWLEY New Statesman

The Public Broadcast Laboratory, the first significant attempt at worthwhile public television in the U.S., is struggling for survival.

Arrayed against it is a large segment of the establishment, most newspapers and ignorant Congress, hostile commercial TV and an apathetic public.

Financed with $5 million annually by the Ford Founda-tion, PBL broadcasts from New York City a minimum 90-minute-long show weekly over 146 Educational TV stations.

Sad Commentary

The estimated available audience is a staggering 150 million. Only 5 to 10 million tune in, according to the Citizens' Committee for Better Broadcasting.

The second set of figures is a sad commentary on the state of American TV, which until PBL and other ETV efforts has been totally dependent on advertisers (the commercials show more imagina tion and skill than the pro-

Recently PBL gave the first clear and penetrating docu-mentary on the New York City school strike I have seen. Like the BBC in its early days PBL is struggling for The Citizens' Com-

Much of the technical equipment is second-hand cast-offs from the commercial networks. Whereas the BBC in the beginning had to argue the Post Office for money, PBL's life depends on the whim of mighty Ford, in particular its president Mc-George Bundy, an architect of Johnson's Vietnam policy.

Not surprisingly, Vietnam is one area PBL's young New Left-type producers have largely avoided, though rea debate involving Senator Fulbright and liberal ex-U.S. Ambassador to Japan O. Reischauer Edwin

If foundation support is tenuous, U.S. Congressional support is laughable. The drive economy public TV at the bottom of a list of priorities headed by more arms for police and weapons for the Pentagon.

The intellectual calibre of Congress was illustrated re-

Little wonder that PBL with its serious critique of American life is more stimulating to watch than network news or art program, and PBL's introduction of a magazine-type show on current events has been imitated by CBS and - with dismal results.

Advertisers Lobby

PBL has ridiculed TV advertising, causing a storm of protest. The National Asso-ciation of Broadcasters spend $2.3 million annually, much of it lobbying in Washington. The networks pressure Congress.

The president of one of the networks was reportedly sit-ting in the office of the Congressional TV committee chairman while the first TV bill was being voted on, and there is no chance of significant Federal aid to TV at the Blow Up in Face? "One hears it argued very frequently that if we do not do something the southern half of the world will blow up in our faces. I always ask, how is it going to blow up and how is it to get at our faces. I do not think it will.

"There will be a moral catastrophe but it will not be a political catastrophe, of course, if there are many Biafras or if 50 million Indians die ln a famine And I submit to you the best course the big powers, and possibly the middle powers, can adopt is to look in the other direction when these things happen . . .

"As long as you ignore them they do not endanger the international system." That is strong talk. It follows logically from the assumption that all should be fixed upon the demarcation line in Germany. Dr. Sommer expressed the fear that Canada's withdrawal from NATO would lead to a chain reaction, and non-German countries in Europe would follow Canada out of the Alliance, or at least out of the military commitment. Andrew Brewin found this argument most unconvincing. He said: "Surely the nations concerned about their own security if they are going to follow the example of Canada, and if the withdrawal of a rather insignificant American military force is going to set off a sort of domino effect and the whole set-up is going to collapse; if the situation is that weak, we should not be trying to hold it

The Fiat 850 Coupe really is a little bomb. To prove it, just light one up. Its tough little engine purrs at city speeds and growls when you boot it from 0 to 60 in just 18 seconds. It'll cruise at 70 MPH too. Better than a lot of mills half as big again.

What's more, its independent suspension on all four and 2 sway bars make it corner like it's on rails. With no oversteer. And when you have to do a panic stop from 80, the front discs haul it down fast and straight.

Look one over at your Fiat dealer's. Vinyl upholstered front buckets and rear seat. Speedo and tach. Four-speed box fully synchro'd. Two-speed heater. Twin fresh air ducts. But best of all, the Fiat 850 Coupe looks great. 'Bob-tailed' just like the big bombers without all those chromy gimmicks. Fact is, it looks like a tiny Ferrari. And it acts like one too.

The Fiat 850 Coupe. Only $2,195.00. Take one out soon and bomb it around a little.

"Neither report was optimistic about the growth potential of the seaway, both agreeing on a 1980 traffic estimate of only 54,000,000 tons," says Reuss. He says numerous studies indicate, however that seaway traffic by 1980 will have reached 70,000,000

Reuss says Transportation May July secretary John Volpe told him the seaway is undergoing a May July "full-soale review."

WASHINGTON - Ken Harrelson is the engaging fellow who calls himself "The Hawk" and who set out, deliberately, to be a baseball personality. Last year, with the help of 35 home runs, he succeeded. His homers for the Boston Red Sox were the second most in the American League and his absolute most. Exactly as he desired, Harrelson could not be decently ignored, and folks began to take note of him.

Until his fifth year in the majors, Harrelson was mostly reduced to taking note of himself. His contrived get-ups in mod styles, his Nehru jackets and flared pants, and Beatled sheep-dog hairdos, commanded for the Hawk a sort of passing interest. But somehow he still struck the league's pitchers as a lifetime hitter and kook of no particular importance. Then Harrelson's baseball fortunes, unlike his batting rage, became utterly unpredictable. They dipped and In 1957 he was virtually booted off the lowly Washington and Kansas City clubs as a non-asset and, as a free agent, was endowed with $75,000 bonus by a Boston team desperate for bench strength. He also came in for $5,100 World Series cheque.

But, for the Hawk, 1968 was better. Harrelson, who had caught a ride on the Red Sox caboose the season before, was now riding in high style with that boom-bat and Boston's No. 1 demigod, Carl Yastrzemski, had need to look to his honors. Harrelson fan clubs sprouted and aped his outlandish get-ups and looked to him for the newest style trend.

The man played good baseball for the Red Sox. A natural first baseman, he was rushed into the breach when Tony Conigliaro was benched for the season with an eye injury, and played right field. He played right field in his own fashion, onehanding fly balls under all circumstances and causing the to be very jumpy. But the record because his fielding average was an Hawk didn't drop any, be-unsurpassable 1.000 in 1968.

All of this led Boston folks, including businessmen, to take a new interest in Harrelson. The Hawk got himself a television show. Firms were willing to pay for his endorsements. His 1969 salary was upped to $50,000, from his base pay of $15,000 with the Senators and Kansas City in 1957. The Hawk could buy more clothes, and life was at its best.

And then a sudden thing happened last week. The Red Sox traded the Hawk to Cleveland as part of a six-player deal, so desperate were they for pitching and catching. Another reason was Tony Conigliano's return to the Boston outfield. The need for Harrelson was less than their need for pitching and catching essentials Almost immediately, Harrelson said "Whoa! I won't go. Cleveland held no charms for him, he said. His business manager advised him, he said, that he could not afford to pull up stakes in Boston, where all that money was beginning to flow to him in his business ventures. Sorry about that chums but it was no deal as far as he was concerned, Harrelson told the Red Sox.

Another kettle of fish, seemingly, for Bowie Kuhn, the new baseball commissioneer who recently disposed of the Montreal-Houston mess. With Harrelson refusing to report, two clubs and the five other players in the transaction are affected. The baseball rules say the deal must be called off, yet Kuhn found a way to compensate Houston for a defecting Montreal player, and make that trade go through.

The Harrelson thing is a bit different. He is the key figure in the Boston-Cleveland deal, not a throw-in. Also, the Red Sox have indicated they will not take Harrelson back under any circumstances. They are sore about him thwarting their only means of getting pitching and catching.

There is a bit of a suspicion that Harrelson's reluctance join Cleveland might be pegged to a money pitch. But if the Hawk is levelling with his statement he is quitting the game, that's it, there is no deal.

Harrelson would be taking a risk in leaving the gam Sponsors and business pals become quickly disenchanted with ex-heroes. Sugar Ray Robinson quit at the top to become a dancer, and later ached for those big paydays he used to get as a champ. Tony Conigliaro's recorded songs sold big, until he dropped out of the Boston lineup for a year. The great Sandy Koufax is no longer the same name. Three years after retirement, NBC knocked him off its "Game of the Week". telecasts, has Koufax doing only radio. Out of baseball, the Hawk could be bucking currents.

JOHN HANNA WINS AWARD

SEATTLE (CP) -Defence man John Hanna of Seattle Totems has been voted most valuable player of the Western Hockey League during the 1968-69 season. Hanna, already named the league's outstanding defenceman and selected for the allstar team, got 142 votes of a possible 450 in ballotting by WHL players. He scored 25 goals this season, equalling a WHL record for defencemen.

The Dodgers, taking advanage of a pair of costly errors, cored five unearned runs in the fifth inning en route to a 7-5 victory Monday night over the Giants, knocking Marichal out of the box for the first time in meetings. It was the Dodgers' seventh straight triumph.

Meanwhile, Mays returned to his old No. 3 spot in the batting order, after hitting leadoff in the Giants' first 11 games, and responded with two singles in three official trips.

In action elsewhere in the Naional League, St. Louis Cardinals broke its seven-game home-losing streak with a 5-4 victory over Montreal Expos, Philadelphia Phillies edged New York Mets 2-1 in 11 innings, Cincinnati Reds ripped Houston Asros 11-5, and Atlanta Braves checked San Diego Padres 5-2 to maintain its half-game edge over the Dodgers in the West

TEE TOPICS

By Ernie Fedoruk

Wayne Vollmer may be the latest, but he's not the first ung golfer to be short-circuited by the Canadian Professional Association's many technicalities and sometimes-

The 24-year-old Vancouver belter has threatened to turn his back on all Canadian competition because the CPGA will not invite him to its champinship tournament Aug. 7-10 at Point

Class "A" status-which means five years' membership in the CPGA—is standard requirement for anyone wishing to scramble for a portion of the $25,000 in prize money.

The five-year regulation is Vollmer's hangup. A pro for less than two years, Vollmer has an unrestricted card to play in the U.S. and he, understandably, is upset by the fact he can not complete in a premier tournament in his own country.

Victoria's two best young playing pros-Bill Wakeham and Vaughan Trapp-tangled with the regulation as recently as last year. Both have been accepted this year, however.

Vollmer has earned $3,368 in five U.S. events this year. If he is unable to play in the CPGA event, Wayne declared in Vancouver at the weekend, he will pass up the entire Canadian Certainly, Vollmer-should feel no more incensed than Trapp might have been last year. Vollmer has been a pro for only two years. Trapp, our man from Oak Bay, had eight years' service as a professional behind him last year, but still was not permitted to compete for the 1968 CPGA purse. The reason being was that Vaughan had been a CPGA card-holder for only four years, and the Canadian body did not recognize the four he served as an assistant pro in England.

Professionals who support the five-year ruling say it is in force, mainly, to entice only the dedicated into our pro shops. Similarly, there is a "probationary" clause that prohibits pros from claining money from various CPGA events until he has had at least a year's experience.

For some reason, that probationary clause didn't affect Vollmer last year when he managed to pick up more than $5,000, and change, from the cross-Canada tour.

As it was explained to me some time ago, those regulations are in force to dissuade youngsters from becoming "golf

(The CPGA seems to be aware of some of the stringency and only recently has approved a comprehensive test to accommodate assistant pros who hope to acquire that coveted class "A" card. Assistants recommended by provincial zones—including our friends Wakeham and Trapp—will take the test May 12. It covers knowledge of golf rules, bylaws and Vollmer does bring up one important point with his loud complaint. His argument is centred around the fact that the CPGA tournament is compulsory for anyone hoping to claim the one Canadian qualifying spot on the Alcan "golfer-of-the-year" affair to be played in Portland come September.

Top prize is $55,000 and only one Canadian can qualify through Canadian events. That lonely individual will be the one who posts the best aggregate score in his two best of three rovincial opens the British Columbia Open at Uplands August 13 to 16, the Quebec and Ontario events—as well as the CPGA

Since the CPGA Tournament is the compulsory one, you can't blame Vollmer for screaming. He has to be one of Canada's outstanding young players, but it is impossible for him to take a crack at the Alcan offering unless tendered a special invitation to the CPGA tournament.

In the U.S., pros also must wait five years for class membership and qualification to their PGA championship. But the Americans recognize the need for a loophole and extend special invitations to non-members. The most notable exception to the rule was Jack Nicklaus, who got his invitation a year after he turned professional and promptly won the U.S. PGA title.

Canadian pros need that same loop-hole.

John Godfrey of The Bay said he noticed the youth in the cafeteria April 9 and recalled telling him several days before he was barred from the premises.

He said he told the youth to leave and after a discussion pulled back his chair and put his hand on Tudor's shoulder. At this point he said the accused jumped up, took a swing and struck him in the neck. He also tried to kick him, he said.

Tudor said he was sorry the incident happened and told Magistrate William Ostler he had spoken to Godfrey before court and apologized.

He said he had been told to leave the premises several days earlier but had been given no reason why, even when he asked for one. He suggested he should have been treated as any other paying customer.

Lee D. Cooke, 18, of 602 Kelly, pleaded guilty to common assault and was remanded to April 30 for sentence.

Wednesday is Saint George's Day, and I hope the forthright old drag-on-slayer will smile on the English whose patron he is. What with taxes on taxes, a constantly menaced economy, beastly weather and Harold Wilson for prime minister, they could use a little sufficiency. We share the Common-wealth tie, yet were we stupid enough to break it, I suspect the English would be rather casual about our withdrawal.

Mind, I'm not pitying them. The quickest way to get an Englishman's back up is to extend pity. It's just that I regard the English as an admirable race, and wish them better fortune than they're currently enjoying.

They are much older than Shakespeare, an Englishman whose birthday falls upon St. George's day, yet new as the mini-skirt. In the teeth of adversity, they have survived -only St. George knows howand with his help, I suspect they'll continue

I'm not entirely sure I like them, but for what they were, are, and will be, I salute them!

When we first came to Victoria, we got our mail by rural delivery.

Every morning except Sun day, the mail lady's car would pull in to the road-edge at about 8:45 am. An arm would reach out and swivel the galvanized box on its post. Up would go the lid with a squeal of unoiled metal. In went the mail, and down came the lid,

It was a simple, routine operation, carried out by the agent of a smooth-functioning government service whose ways and works we pretty well took for granted.

So much for the Today, along with Canadians all across the land, we are wondering what the devil has happened to the Post Office

I fail to understand why a government that is lavish in less vital areas should find it necessary to penny-pinch its captive customers by requiring six cent stamps on all sealed letters.

Nor do I understand how the postmaster-general can justify the dropping of a Saturday mail delivery to householders. This to their inconvenience, and the Monday over-loading of carriers.

This strikes me as a step backward: in fact it puts us away back of where we were in our rural delivery days.

And here's another change for the worse, pointed out by a Duncan reader who wards a Canada Post Office sheet listing rental increases in box rates. This year, the rate on a Standard Class "A" box, cheapest on the list, was bounced from $6 to $8.

Add to all, the delivery that have caused so much complaint, and we get a picture of a service that is providing less for more and losing considerable good-will in the process.

Recreation and Conserva-tion Minister Ken Kiernan is quoted in the "British Columbia News Letter," a government propaganda sheet, as declaring that the days "of slashing and gouging our way into a beautiful wilderness' are over.

Very large tracts of that wilderness are also over, A wild empire in the Rocky Mountain Trench is being flooded out of existence for a either, that strip-mining slashand-gouge plans in the Crowsnest region have been re-

Another reader from Wellesley, Ontario, has asked me to include in the column some tips on how to sew up the seams of sweaters properly.

It is most important to press or block the finished knit pieces, before attempting to put the garment together. If you are lining the garment now is the time to use the pressed pieces as a lining guide.

If you are making a dress or knitted suit, basic the seams together, then try the garment on for fit. Make adjustments necessary, by taking deeper seams, or bust darts, etc.

Using the same yarn as the garment is made with, unless it is a boucle, or other nubbly yarn, work small running with an occasional back stitch along where you

Treasure Chest Makes Sweet Gift

By PENNY SAVER

"I've promised myself into a corner," Mathilda admitted last week over a cup of coffee. Despite what television advertising may say it was not helping her think one little bit. "As you know I am going to fly to Edmonton to visit Sheila and her husband and I promised to bring their boy Harry something from Victoria. Foolishly I made two different promises: one of candy and the other of something to do with his current heroes, pirates. Harry, bless his little heart, is bound to keep me to both promises. The candy is no problem at all, but bucaneering doesn't seem to be in style right now. On top of that I am running out of space in my

Mathilda's problem was solved in a manner that should please the heart of any little boy. She bought Harry a replica of a sea chest filled with toffee. Made of painted metal this sea chest comes complete with a padlock so Harry can use it to hide his treasures once the "treasure" of toffee is depleted. The chest of toffee costs $1.95. Mathilda had no trouble packing it into a spare corner of her bag and she made it out of Victoria before the air strike could spoil her

There is another style of toffee tin that would appeal more to little girls. This is painted to look like a chest but with plaques painted with flowers on the side. This chest has a look built in and a slot on the top for coins. A little larger than the sea chest tin, this bank full of toffee costs $2.50.

Mixture for All Tastes

Gladys always has a bowl of wrapped candies sitting in the living room, an open invitation to anyone visiting her to partake of a sweet. She found, though, that pleasing everyone all of the time was impossible. If she had mints, someone was sure to hate them while the mint lovers would turn up their noses at toffee. The solution to her problem was found in the same shop where Mathilda found the sea chest of toffee for Harry and costs 78 cents a pound. It is a mixture of 60 different varieties of English wrapped candies and if a person cannot find something to his taste in a selection as varied as that he is a picky person indeed.

Buttermints, small coin-sized mints in pastel colors with an almost fudge-like consistency, are quite popular right now and many different confection companies are making them. One store here in Victoria, however, carries the original butter mints, made from a recipe developed by an Englishman years ago. These mints come in three colors, pink, yellow and green, as well as white. A seven-ounce box is $1 while a 16-ounce box is $2. Because they are small and colorful, these mints are great for parties or as gifts to

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice Farmer, dresses with panels that are inset in the garment. These always have a corner that has be clipped and set. Mine always pucker and I have to to repair them by hand. Could you please tell me how these should be done.

Mrs. B. McB.

Dear Mrs. B. McB.: The "corners" you are, referring to must be done the same as a gusset. I always call these trouble spots "gus-set-detail" First, before you clip your fabric to set these panels in you must reinforce the corners with a very 'small stitch, one-half inch each side of the corner. Then clip to the very last stitch. Stitch the first part of this panel by pinning toward the clip, when you have caught the very last stitch, do not pivot, instead run your stitching off to the end of the under section. Then remove from the sewimg machine, pull the top section slightly away from the clipped corner to avoid a pucker of fabric, begin stitching at the under section, gradually catching in the beginning of the clipped corner and continue.

This is a most maddening detail. If you take one more stitch than you should have, you will see a pucker; if you stop one stitch too soon, you will find a hole. For more complete, detailed instructions and sketches you may send 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of this newspaper and I will send you my booklet "All About Gus-sets" which I know you will find more than helpful. Diamonds Fill Elsa's Days

Elsa Hart learned her trade in the school of hard rocks.

And she isn't out of the classroom yet, since she spends all her time telling other people about her specialty-diamonds.

Miss Hart's career began at the University of Kansas City where she majored in economics and marketing.

An advertising director of a major jewelry trade magazine, she had to learn something about jewelry and this knowledge put her in the running when the New York advertising agency she now works for began looking for lecturers for their diamond information program.

DIAMOND TRAIL

Once chosen as a lecturer Miss Hart studied for a year at the Gemological Institute of America then began a fivemonth tour in which she followed the trail of diamonds that begins at the mines in South Africa.

Diamond mines, she learned, aren't frightening at

"I had visions of burrowing through the earth," she admitted. Instead she found an elevator shaft parallelling the shaft of diamond-bearing ore and at its base "a big hallway about 15 times the width of this room."

From the mines, Miss Hart followed the diamonds to London where they are graded according to weight (in carats), color and clarity. Of all the diamonds mined, only 20 per cent are clear enough to qualify as gem stones. The rest are used industrially because of their hardness.

TINY DIAMONDS

The next step is the cutting -freeing the prism within the rough diamond to make "Most diamonds are cut in Holland. The largest diamonds are usually cut in New York and the tiniest in Israel," she explained.

Israeli diamond cutters can cut diamonds so small that 200 taken together would weigh two carats.

Miss Hart also visited Paris. Rome and Switzerland learning about jewelry design.
Armed with this knowledge and a staggering display of gem diamonds, rough diamonds, industrial diamonds and tools, ore replicas of famous diamonds and educational films, Miss Hart lectures across the continent.

While a small white diamond in an engagement ring is enough for the average girl, Miss Hart reports that men who are interested in diamonds are more interested in "fancies," or diamonds that are colored.

RARELY WHITE

Pure white diamonds, in fact, are rare and even white can come in 325 possible shades. Some that look white are tinted in comparison to pure white stones while others, such as the deep blue Hope diamond or the aqua Dresden Green diamond, need no such comparison to reveal

Naturally the extremes in either direction are the most valuable and this led a scientist to experiment with changing the color of pale tinted diamonds to increase their value.

First he tried to bleach tinted diamonds. When this failed he bombarded them with radioactivity to deepen the color. This succeeded splendidly, though Miss Hart reports that there is no control over the eventual of these irradiated diamonds.

The shades obtained through this irradiation technique are often deep and brilliant. The stones are increased in value, though not to the heights of a naturally colored stone, and they must be labelled as irradiated or cyclotron treated. Miss Hart still takes an Miss Hart still takes an interest in jewelry in general. She firmly believes that jewelry should be fun and never buys a new piece herself unless she can think of at least three different ways

SLIT GLOVES

The brooch shown on her sleeve in the picture was made to her specifications and has 18 colored diamonds and five white diamonds in a gold, flame-shaped setting.

She wears it on her sleeve, she explained, because this way the movement of her arm increases the change of light in the stones. Also she can see and enjoy the brooch model fashions by Miss Frith.

Can schools be expected to do this, too? Somebody or some institution must. The most important thing most of us do in our lives is to raise children. Yet, for most of us it's a learn-on-the-job experience. And the errors are very costly: marital discord, many divorces, physical and emotional abuse of children.

Teen-agers drop out or graduate from school, get married, have babies—having learned the mechanics of sex, but not much else. These youngsters, and even the ones going off to college, need an understanding of family interaction, what it means to be a parent, and even an answer to that question of whether two can live as cheaply as one.

Some schools do offer family courses, but often they're low-prestige items for "voca-tional" students or home economics classes which serve only girls, usually not those on the academic track. What's needed for all students, boys and girls, is what just a handful of schools offer today: human development courses with laboratory experience for students to actually get down and work with young children.

Montgomery County, Md., claims the origination of the idea of child development labs in the high school. These are programs in which high schoolers run a pre-school right in the high school. Four mornings a week, groups of four-year-olds, mostly children of the high school faculty members, troop into school to be taught, played with and looked at through one-way mirrors. The fifth day is staff where the high schoolers pool together all the learnings they made about the children and themselves that week.

These labs will not just help these high schoolers become better parents but will also school in day-care centres and other child services which are desperate for trained staff.

In the upper elementary grades children want answers to questions like these: What are crushes? Why do boys and girls insult each other when they don't mean it? What is masculine? Feminine? These are things children want to know, even if they don't come right out and ask.

In junior high on up, boygirl involvement becomes intensified. Youngsters need to ask: How can I overcome shyness. When I'm just being nice, why is it everyone thinks I'm flirting? Should I go on a blind date? How far should I go in necking? When should I sav no?

By the end of high school, with students going off to marriage, college or a job, some send-off guidance is essential to prepare these young adults for life in a on-their-own environment away from parent and school control.

Thrashing these problems out in the classroom provides students with the bigger world perspective. This does not mean that schools should take over the home's role in talking over these questions. There's room for both, For many youngsters the school will be the only place that they get a chance to talk about these matters.

I LIKE YOUR ER, LAMPSHADE?

St. David's Church women in Cordova Bay have come up with a bizarre bazaar as this year's charity project. The idea isn't to come and buy something; it's come and give something. Anything. Trimming from needlework, odds and ends of wool, torn blankets, old books—even lampshades will be accepted at the church hall Wednesday beginning at 10 a.m. These articles will be made useable and donated to flood, fire and poverty relief all over British Columbia. It isn't for any specific charity—just charity in general. Goodwill Enterprises, the Cancer Clinic and Salvation Army will all receive portions of the take. Two lampshades are modelled here by Mrs. E. Coomber as her 11-year-old daughter, Laura, looks on.

The slacks and tops could be mixed and matched, solids together or stripes with solids. They decided they'd be just the thing for little girls to romp in, but thought that first they would try them out. They did somersaults and splits, zigzagged, wriggled, squirmed, flipped over each other and took some spills, jumped up, cartwheeled and careened and then stood on their heads looking at each other upside down until they fell over laughing. Even after all of that there was stretch left over. That's because the fabric spinners made them to stretch playfully with little girls, but always go back to their original

Captain Fined

By ED GOULD

CHEMAINUS—Captain Alexander Jonasse n w a s fined $500 Monday after pleading guilty to acciden-tally polluting Chemainus harbor with 400 gallons of bunker oil.

His ship, the Norwegian freighter Ariel, was loading lumber at the MacMillan Bloedel dock and during refuelling early Sunday discharged the thick black oil over the deck and into the harbor.

The ship sailed at 9 p.m

A total of nine 45-gallon drums of strong detergent were used to emulsify the harbor area but the cleanup is continuing on a reduced scale today.

OUT WITH TIDE

"It is mostly on an individual basis now," harbormaster R. B. Guilbride said. "The tide took the main lot out but we may be getting some more back now that the wind has changed again.'

He said the oil now was concentrated in pools on the gravel beach between the government dock and MacMillan and Bloedel and around the boats anchored in the harbor.

Black gobs of oil are clinging to pilings and "anything that touches the water."

CARGO DAMAGED

Guilbride said the Ariel tool along two drums of the deterswab its decks clear of the oil when it gets outside controlled waters. Some cargo was also damaged by oil.

Guilbride said it was unfortunate that the incident hap-pened to Captain Jonassen especially since he had newly taken command.

"But the resultant publicity may make other shippers think twice before allowing such twice before allowing accidents to happen again.

Recovering From Winter

By HILDA BEASTALL

In most cases it has payed off to wait until April before cutting down or discarding shrubs which seemed badly damaged this past winter. Many of those badly hit are making new growth at their tips and recovery may be complete, in some cases lacking only flowers this year.

A few have been slow to show any sign of activity that we began to wonder whether they were really gone.

Only in the last four days have signs been vis-Hilda ible on Pee-Gee hydrangeas. Late in March, they were pruned as usual, each side growth back to two buds from a main branch. But the buds remained inactive for nearly a month longer.

Now they are visibly swelling. A small feeding of a general fertilizer plus a surface mulch of old manure mixed with compost should speed them along.

New growth this summer should be five feet long and terminate in lovely cones of creamy white blossoms by late August, Pee-Gee (short for Hydrangea paniculate grandiflora) is one of my favorite hydran-geas, for it carries its blooms right through eptamber into October when they fade off into a dusky rose color. It is not at all fussy in soil requirements, and will take full sun or partial shade with equally good results.

Another slow starter this year is callistemon brachyandrus, one of the bottlebrushes. All the long pliable stems of narrow evergreen leaves were frozen brown and we were doubtful if any of our dozen or so plants were alive.

Now, at last, on some we see tiny red dots no bigger than a pin's head, low down near soil level.

Pieris forrestii, the Snowdrop-bush with brilliant scarlet new leaf growth in spring and fall, were frozen to below snow level, but now on bare stems can be seen shoots an eighth of an inch long.

May they grow again into handsome evergreen shrubs!

Columbus A Spanish Pirate?

MADRID (AP) - Christopher Columbus — revered as an Italian who discovered America for Spain — actually was a Spanish Basque pirate, a Spanish historian maintains.

The historian with a new view of history is Fernando del Valle Lersundi, who presented his surprise theory to the Spanish Royal Academy in October. In Rome, Italian experts called the theory "silly."

Del Valle argued in the Madrid newspaper ABC that Columbus was the nephew of a Spanish-born French pirate, Admiral Guillermo de Casenove, whose exploits against enemy shipping brought him the nick-name of "Colon."

"The name of the discoverer of America," said Del Valle, "has no relation to the Genovese Colombo, or with the Columbuses of Pontevedra, nor with the Columbuses of Corcega or of our Levante lands, nor with any other considered until now related to the discoverer.

FLED TO FRANCE

Admiral de Casenove, said Del Valle, was a Spanish Basque, probably born in Navarre, along the border with Guipuzcoa province, or in Guipuzcoa itself. The historian theorizes that Guillermo fled Spain to France, having taken the losing side in a fight against King John II of Aragon in the middle of the 15th century.

In the battle of Cape St. Vincent near Lisbon in August, 1476, said Del Valle, Christopher Columbus fought with his uncle's pirate fleet against a fleet of Spanish ships as "Colombo Junior."

Del Valle says Columbus felt guilty throughout his life for his fight against his own countrymen and that prompted him to add a codicil to his will bequeathing money to certain individuals with the stipulation that they were not to know their benefactor's name. Among the recipients were many of the owners of ships attacked at Cape St. Vincent.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Dull Scottish Poet Made Big Land Grab

By BOB BOWMAN Modern real estate speculators are often in the news but they would be pikers compared to William Scotland who became the Earl of Stirthe ling. He was a member of the household of King James I and taught his Bowman children. King James liked to write poetry and got Alexander to help him compose a metrical version of the Psalms. Alexander was a very dull poet but had a sharp eye for business. In 1621 he persuaded King James to grant him what is now Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Maine, and part of Quebec with the right to "erect cities, appoint fairs, hold courts, grant lands and coin money.'

Was there ever a real estate deal as big as that? Unfortunately Alexander did ont coin money. In fact his company went broke after King Charles succeeded King James and traded Nova Scotia back to France for a share of Princess Henrietta Maria's dowry that was owing to him for marrying her. DIED BROKE

However, King Charles tried to make up for that by granting Alexander what is now Long Island, New York, on April 22, 1635. Alexander had become the Earl of Stirling by then, but was not able to develop New York, and died in London practi-

What exactly is locowood? Loco is a word that speaks for itself. We borrowed it from a Spanish word meaning "in-sane" or "crazy" and extended its meaning to include whacky and slightly clownish. The locoweed has a loco effect or and other herbivorous animals who eat it.

Actually there are about 100 different locoweeds. They are wild plants of Western North America and a few of them are deadly dangerous to our cattle, sheep and horses. As a rule, the ranch animals nibble around them and leave them strictly alone. But sometimes the edible greenery of prairies and ranges is dry and sparse. Then the animals eat locoweeds to fill their hungry stomachs. This is dangerous and often fatal, for these plants contain poisons that seem to attack the animals' nervous systems.

Cattle and horses that have eaten locoweed soon show signs of distress. Their muscles become slow and clumsy and they stumble around in a dopey fashion, maybe bumping into each other. Their eyes are glazed and blurry and food does not interest them. Sometimes they prance and seem to frollic around like clowns. But the unfortunate creatures are pois-oned with loco disease and life is not worth living. Unable to eat, they waste away and perish from starvation. Sheep who eat loco-weeds may be luckier than the ows and horses.

These wretched weeds are erennial herbs that look like nnocent wild plants. You might mistake them for relatives of the wild vetches that belong in the pea plant family. The locoweeds also belong in the Leguminosae family. They are erect little bushes with sprays of small green leaves and dropping clusters of miniature pea-shaped blossoms. The most common varieties bear flowers of white, bluebonnet blue or pansy purple. The faded flowers are replaced by miniature peapods and the dry seeds pop out to start a new generation of

Absorbs Poison

Most weeds are rated as pests because they choke out our cultivated plants by stealing air, unlight and soil chemicals. The locoweeds are more serious pests because they are poison ous to farm animals. Ranchers do their best to control them. They use tractors to drag sloping disks through the sloping disks through the ground. The knife-edged metal disks revolve through the plant roots about two inches below the surface. This ends the perennial life of the locoweeds and also destroys a lot of harmless and even usefu plants. Some ranchers prefer to attack locoweeds with herbi chemicals also may damage plants and animals we want to protect. The best anwer to the ocoweed may be plentiful supplies of healthy fodder so that anials are not tempted to eat it. The early settlers had no idea why locoweeds were so dnager ous to their farm animals. Modern chemists discovered that the locoweeds have a special ability to absorb these poisons from the soil without being harmed. However, they can and they do hand their deadly doses on to animals that eat their leaves and even their dried out stems.

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Tim Weekley, age 11, of Stone Mountain, Georgia, for his question:

Where are the Eastern an Western Hemispheres divided? The earth provides two definite markers that we can use to divide the Northern and Southern Hemispheres. They are the North and South Geographic Poles, alias the two ends of the axis around which the world rotates. We can figure the halfway point between them. which is the equator, and use it to slice the global map into equal north and south hemispheres. But we have no natural ground markers to help us to slice the global map into an Eastern and Western Hemps phere.

Geographers, however, have devised a neat network of latitude and longitude lines to section off the surface. These man-made lines mark every spot with its north and south, east and west position. A map maker might want to slice equa Eastern and Western Hemis pheres along the Prime Meridian that runs through Green wich, England, and the International Date Line down the Pacific, half a world away. But the land masses are not arranged to suit this plan. What's more, people seem to have settled the matter in a way of their own. The populaions of the Americas tend to regard their territory as the Western Hemisphere and to donate the biggest half of the globe to the Eastern Hemis phere.

statement would be, "I never pass". Then South decided to try to make this hopeless contract.

The queen of hearts lead had to be helpful except that South suspected it was a singleton and trumps would break 5-1. He played dummy's four and was delighted to see East produce the ace. East returned the queen of spades. South took his ace and played the king of hearts. If both opponents followed, he planned to draw trumps and trust to the club suit coming in. Un f ortunately for trumps that South held. Furthermore, he was on lead and South, West showed out.

Central Saanich isn't interested in a proposal to amalgamate the northern peninsula fire departments. The suggestion was made by North Saanich Ald. George Aylard last week on the grounds of economy and efficiency. He urged that a study be made on uniting the North Saanich-Sidney and Central Saanich fire departments. But the proposal met a cold reception at a council meeting

Monday. "We have the most efficient volunteer fire department on southern Vancouver Island," said Mayor Archibald Galbraith. "I don't see any necessity for such a move."

Ald. Peter Lazarz noted that Sidney and North Saanich were involved in a dispute over the operation of the fire protection service. "To talk of amalgamating at this time would be adding more meat to the boiling stew pot," he stated.

Negotiations between the two municipalities over the administration of the department have reached a stalemate. So far there is no indication of an early settlement.

SAILOR ENDS LONGEST VOYAGE

FALMOUTH, England (AP) - British yachtsman Robin Knox-Johnston battled his way through a near gale into this old Cornish port today to complete man's first known solo non-stop voyage around the world.

A harbor cannon boomed a salute to the rugged 30-yearold merchant marine officer as he crossed the finishing line in his 32-foot ketch Suhaili after a 29,000-mile expedition.

High winds and a heavy sea foiled his attempt to sail directly into Falmouth harbor. Northeasterly winds forced him to zig-zag over the last few miles, delaying his entry by more than seven hours.

The mayor of Falmouth, civil officials and crowds of Britons gathered to honor the man who suffered incredible hardships for 311 solitary days at sea. A golden globe and possibly $12,000 in prize money awaited him.

Mind, I'm not pitying them. The quickest way to get an Englishman's back up is to extend pity. It's just that I regard the English as an admirable race, and wish them better fortune than they're currently enjoying.

We share the Commonwealth tie, yet were we stupid enough to break it, I suspect the English would be rather casual about our withdrawal.

They are much older than Shakespeare, an Englishman whose birthday falls upon St. George's day, yet new as the mini-skirt. In the teeth of adversity, they have survived only St. George knows how-and with his help, I suspect we first came Victoria, we got our mail by rural delivery.

I'm not entirely sure I like them, but for what they were are, and will be, I salute them !

Every morning except Sunday, the mail lady's ear would pull in to the road-edge at about 8:45 am. An arm would reach out and swivel the galvanized box on its post. Up would go the lid with a squeal of unoiled metal. In went the mail, and down came the lid.

It was a simple, routine operation, carried out by the agent of a smooth-functioning government service whose ways and works we pretty well took for granted.

So much for the past Today, along with Canadians all across the land, we are wondering what the devil has happened to the Post Office

I fail to understand why a government that is lavish in less vital areas should find it necessary to penny-pinch its captive customers by requiring six cent stamps on all sealed letters.

Nor do I understand how the postmaster-general can justify the dropping of a Saturday mail delivery to householders. This to their inconvenience, and the Monday over-loading of carriers.

This strikes me as a step backward: in fact it puts us away back of where we were in our rural delivery days.

And here's another change for the worse, pointed out by a Duncan reader who forwards a Canada Post Office sheet listing rental increases in box rates.

This year, the rate on a Standard Class "A" box, cheapest on the list, was bounced from $6 to $8.

Add to all, the delivery delays that have caused so much complaint, and we get a picture of a service that is providing less for more and losing considerable goodwill in the process.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan is quoted in the "British Columbia News Letter," a government propaganda sheet, as declaring that the days "of slashing and gouging our way into a beautiful wilderness" are over.

Very large tracts of that wilderness are also over. A wild empire in the Rocky Mountain Trench is being flooded out of existence for a either, that strip-mining slashand-gouge plans in the Crows nest region have been re-missed a plane at Victoria airport because he couldn't get into the parking lot without putting two quarters in the slot of a coin-operated barrier.

So he wrote to Transport Minister Paul Hellyer saying the 50-cent fee was "extor-tion." And why not put the barrier at the exit of the parking lot to save the out-going traveller from missing his flight? That was Oct. 18.

Dec. 4 a Hellyer aide wrote that the fee was fair and accepted elsewhere, But the department would change the barrier to the exit. Word comes now that now, four months later, this is being done. As of Wednesday, parking lot patrons will pay on the way out.

The rub is, that before his last departure to Ottawa, the abrasive MP had to pay the way in. His car is in the

40 Workers Back on Job After Injunction Granted

By DON VIPOND

Two mystery picketers, described as "hippie types", brought work to a halt on a $7.5 million construction project at Jordan River Monday.

A court injunction barring them was issued later in the day but the unidentified pair did not show up this morning.

About 40 workers for Emile Anderson Construction Ltd. of Hope refused to go to work when the picketers appeared, carrying signs saying "Emile Anderson Unfair."

Company lawyer Ken Murphy, said today the men refused to identify themselves to management on the site but warned.

STAR DRIVERS ORGANIZE BRANCH IN CITY TO FIGHT ROAD SLAUGHTER

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

In West Germany after the last war, the alarming increase in car accidents involving servicemen and civilians gave birth to an organization known as Knights of the Road.

Through military and civilian channels, and a newspaper campaign, it appealed British, Canadian, American and German drivers to emulate the old ideals of chivalry in their treatment of others on the road.

community service to people who can afford more, Mrs. The idea spread to Britain and in 1963 the Star Drivers' Association was formed by a Horne said there was nothing stopping them from donating, group of clergy and laymen. Now there will be a branch This viewpoint differed from

of the association in Victoria having as its slogan: UNITE AND FIGHT HIGHWAY SLAUGHTER

Ralph Cossey has been named local organizer and Premier Bennett will be offered the first honorary membership. "First aim of our association will be to promote courtesy, discipline and better driving," Cossey said. "We believe this will go a long way towards reducing the alarming number of deaths and acci-dents on our roads."

"While it is hard to pinpoint the results, the association has certainly helped reduce accidents in Britain and it is as much needed in North America as anywhere else."

Cossey said all directors of the local branch will be voluntary but a paid secretary may be appointed to man a small office in Victoria. The annual subscription will be about $2.50. Plastic window badges identifying the driver as a member of the Star Drivers' Association will be sold for a smaller sum. "Many organizational details have yet to be worked out," Cossey said. "We have

The possibility of switching the headquarters has been raised a number of times during recent years because of high British taxation. A company official said today that there is nothing new to add, other than Amory's brief comment when the annual report was made public Monday night. However there appears to be

However there appears to be less inclination by Canadians to invest in Hudson's Bay because lize is a British-based company, the official added.

Amory said the company plans to expand its Canadian retail outlets, raising more capital mainly in Canada. Hudson's Bay has seven large suburban retail stores in Canada. Two 69% more are planned for this year and another two for 1970.

The company's annual report for the year ended Jan. 31, 1969, showed pre-tax profits of £10,-552,000 ($27,435,200) a rise of 7.2 per cent over the previous year. Net profits after taxes rose by 4.2 per cent to £5,655,000 ($14,-703,000). The major part of the profits increase was attributed to higher fur prices.

The Times, in commenting on the report, says Canadians have "disinvested further from Hud-son's Bay" and if control remains in London, British shareholders can only regard the stock as a dollar hedge.

Oil Drilling Linked With Sovereignty

OTTAWA (CP) - Oil drilling in the Arctic islands was linked with Canada's sovereignty over the area in a statement Monday by Northern Development Min ister Jean Chretien.

The statement, announcing that a deep exploratory well of Paper Corp Panarctic Oils Ltd. has started Brit Motors to test for oil on Melville Island, quoted Chretien as saying that come of the control of the control eignty over the islands, although there was some doubt about Arctic waters.

The exploratory well at Drake Point on Melville Island, 1,000 miles from the North Pole, is will be drilled by Panarctic over the next three warding the next three warding wardin the next three years. The company is 45 per cent owned by the federal government.

Seaway Tolls Increase Proposed

WASHINGTON (CP) -Congressman Henry Reuss says a still-secret government study of the St. Lawrence Seaway pro-poses another tolls increase of 20 to 40 per cent plus a halt to any steps to increase its capac-opposes higher tolls on the seavay, says the outgoing administration of President Johnson actually left behind two separate reports on the seaway which the Republican government must handle.

"Neither report was optimistic about the growth potential of the seaway, both agreeing on a 1990 traffic estimate of only 54,000,000 tons," says Reuss. He says numerous studies indicate, however that seaway traffic by 1980 will have reached 70,000,000

The possibility of switching the headquarters has been raised a number of times during recent years because of high British taxation, A company official said today that there is nothing new to add, other than Amory's brief comment when the annual report was made public Monday night.

However there appears to be less inclination by Canadians to invest in Hudson's Bay because Sala British-based company, the official added.

Sala British-based company, and the company plans to expand its Canadian retail cutlets, raising more capital mainly in Canada. Hudson's Bay has seven large suburban retail stores in Canada. Two more are planned for this year more are planned for this year and another two for 1970. The company's annual report for the year ended Jan. 31, 1969, showed pre-tax profits of £10,-552,000 ($27,435,200) a rise of 7.2 per cent over the previous year. Net profits after taxes rose by 4.2 per cent to £5,655,000 ($14,-703,000). The major part of the profits increase was attributed to higher fur prices. The Times, in commenting on the report, says Canadians have "disinvested further from Hudson's Bay" and if control re-mains in London, British shareholders can only regard the stock as a dollar hedge.
